A Planned Structured Approach to Successful Interviewing

Workshops which instruct participants in the use of a planned approach to the interview process are focused on employee selection and development. Identifying specific qualities and behaviors of the most effective and efficient employees will be the mindset that workshop activities generate as we launch our study. Once there is agreement on what behavior and intent of the best employee should be, then the concentration will be on how to discover if a candidate has these qualities. These sessions will provide participants with information that will make a major contribution toward accomplishing daily responsibilities. Successful persons in personnel work are those who select successful employees.
